They asked their teacher what is inside and then enjoy learning with each other bunny loves to learn one morning Buster bunny and his best friend's Sam the squirrel, Max the mouse and Francine the frog arrived at school. What's in those boxes miss? Ask buster. Costumes, said Miss nibbler. Today, you're going to dress up as people who lived a long time ago. I want you to make something from the time when they lived and tell us all about it. I'm going to find out about vikings that buster. I want to be a knight said Sam. They have amazing helmets. I think I'll be a princess bride, Francine. I can't decide what to find out about that. Matt. Why don't you dress up as an Egyptian ruler, said Buster taking a book from the shelf. They were called pharaohs. But the Pharaoh's crown was missing from the box. I don't want to be a king without a crown said Max. Just then he noticed a poster on the classroom wall. I want to be any Gyptian mummy. He said. They're so cool. He rummaged in the costume box. Father, he said there's no mommy costume. I've got a knight's sword and helmet, said Sam. I'm going to make a shield to go with them. I'm building a model of a Viking ship said Buster. And I making a palace for a princess said Francine. Soon, Buster, Sam and Francine were busy making thing. But Max still didn't know what to make. I really want to dress as a mommy. He grumbled. What else do you know about Egyptians? Ask buster. I know they built big pyramids, said Max. Why don't you build one of those? Suggested buster. Max found some big sheets of cardboard and tried to make a pyramid. Oh dear. He said this is trickier than I thought. Francine showed him how to look up pyramids on the computer. Ah, no, I see. said Max. A pyramid has four sides. Not three. And each side is exactly the same size. Max finished his pyramid proudly. But then he sighed. Oh, I still don't know what to wear. He said. Oh, that buster. Suddenly. I just got a paper cut. It's only a small one. That Miss Nibbler but you'd better go to the school nurse or a bandage. That gives me an idea, said Buster. He whispered in Max's ear. Great laugh Max. Please don't be long.

When it was time to present to the class, the friends took turns showing what they had made. I am a Knight said Sam. My shield protected me in battle. It was brightly painted, though that my friends could recognize me when my helmet was shut I'm a princess said Francine. I lived in a palace. I wore long silky dresses, and tall pointy hats. And I often got to boss around all the Knights luster back from the nurse show the class is Viking ship. I'm a Viking. He said. I loved to sail in a very fast ship, called a long ship. It had a dragon's head carved on the front to scare my enemies. Thanks buster. That Miss Nibbler now it's Max's turn. Egyptians lived a very very long time ago, said Max his voice. But he was nowhere to be seen. They built amazing pyramids. The voice went on. The pyramids were taller than 10 houses on top of each other. Nobody lived in them except for mummies raw. And Max leaped out of the pyramid. So that's where you were hiding? Cried Francine. Where did you get that wonderful mommy costume? Asked Sam. I thought there wasn't one. I borrowed the bandages from the school nurse said Max. It was busters idea. Clever thinking buster. said Miss Nibbler and well done to everybody. Your costumes look amazing. And you've all learned some really interesting things. What a wonderful show and tell and that's the end of the story. I hope you learned some wonderful things at school. Good night, sleep tight.
